Dear Student Doctor,

As you begin your journey of researching and selecting residency programs where you will spend the next several years of your life, the American Association of Colleges of Osteopathic Medicine (AACOM) seeks to offer tools and resources to smooth your journey. Osteopathic medical students often seek residency programs that are familiar with osteopathic medicine and/or that have ties to the osteopathic profession. This guidebook was developed to help osteopathic medical students identify programs that are affiliated with colleges of osteopathic medicine.

Programs across the nation in various specialties and subspecialties are featured in this guidebook, the first national guidebook of its kind. In here, you will find a repository of programs organized by specialty with links to help you navigate to their websites for further information.

In addition to these programs that have been identified as having a form of affiliation with an osteopathic medical school(s), we urge you to also consider programs that have the ACGME Osteopathic Recognition designation. These can be found on the Accreditation Council of Graduate Medical Education (ACGME) website by running the following report in the ACGME's Accreditation Data System (ADS): <https://apps.acgme.org/ads/Public/Reports/Report/17>

You may also be interested in Osteopathic Neuromusculoskeletal programs, which can be easily identified on the ACGME public data site: <https://apps.acgme.org/ads/Public/Reports/Report/21>

Finally, programs that transitioned from the American Osteopathic Association during the transition to the single graduate medical education accreditation system from 2015-2020, can be found on ACGME ADS report: <https://apps.acgme.org/ads/Public/Reports/Report/18>

With these tools, we hope you will find it easier to identify programs that are welcoming of osteopathic medical students and may incorporate osteopathic principles and practices in graduate medical education.

Sincerely,

Richard Terry, DO

Chair, AACOM Osteopathic GME Working Group, UME-GME Task Force

Disclaimer

The list of programs in this guide were gathered through researching websites of and direct contact with colleges of osteopathic medicine. This is a living document. There may be programs that are not listed. There may be programs that have different (USMLE/COMLEX) exams required for applications than listed or the USMLE/COMLEX acceptance criteria may not be listed. If you are affiliated with a program or have any relationship with one of the colleges of osteopathic medicine and are aware of GME programs that do not appear in this list or have outdated information, please contact us with the accurate information to include at GME-initiatives@aacom.org.

We have deferred to each College of Osteopathic Medicine (COM) to identify and inform us of their affiliated GME programs. This allows for flexibility in recognizing the diverse nature of affiliations across different institutions. For specific details regarding a program's affiliation, please refer to the respective COM.

Survey for feedback

The AACOM UME-GME Task Force developed this list of programs that are affiliated with Colleges of Osteopathic Medicine. This guide is a tool for osteopathic medical students to help them navigate the transition to residency and the residency application and match process. This is one of several resources that osteopathic medical students may choose to utilize in this process. Please provide us with feedback on the resource and any needed improvements.
